TASMAN
INSPIRING NEW LEATHERS FROM NEW ZEALAND

High quality is a by-product of environmental responsibility

It is not at all surprising that Collins & Moore demand top of the line leather for their furniture. Being an environmentally aware enterprise they specify not just excellence but demand environmental responsibility in the creation of it.

Hence the Collins & Moore/Tasman Leather alliance.

Tasman leather is sourced from what is regarded as one of the very few unspoilt countries on our planet.

New Zealand's environmental standards are applauded around the globe.

In essence Tasman takes a by-product of the cattle industry and transforms it into a versatile and highly prized material - a material that lasts for years and gets so much better looking as it gets older. Tasman's inspiration for the colour palette comes from the earthy hues of their unspoilt environment.

At Tasman we are aware of the need to protect and care for the pastoral landscape that is essential to producing strong cattle and hides of the highest quality.

Our water based processing uses New Zealand's pure, soft and abundant water supply.

Our quality is a product of our sincere environmental concern.

Haven: Corrected grain leather that easily deals with every day life

Leather is at once soft and strong, comfortable and supportive. And being natural it is the ideal material for family life. Many love how it ages and takes on a patina of living.

Haven is a corrected-grain variety. It uses the strong top-grain layer of quality cattle hides. Some of these hides can show marks and scars such as insect bites, nicks and bruises so embossing the leather ensures a consistent grain pattern.

Haven's high quality, value price and easy clean practicality make this leather ideal for every day living. And a natural choice for Collins & Moore.

Sanctuary: Full grain leather, silky smooth to the touch

Furniture whose surface thrills your fingers can liberate your senses and even change your life. So much of what we feel constitutes comfort. Home, our emotional heart-land, is where we need to indulge ourselves. And the Tasman Sanctuary range lets you do just that.

Sanctuary has the look and feel of a semi-aniline leather. It features a unique moisturised, silky smooth finish - a product of extended tumbling of the hides and the use of special dressings. Touch it and it'll touch you. Much time and attention is spent creating this fullness and fine silky coat hence the high cost.

Sanctuary is very sensual and very sophisticated - the ideal material to help make your Collins & Moore furniture a luxurious pleasure zone.
